Welcome to Our Newsletter

Hello Friends,

Happy New Year! Well, 2005 has come to a close, and we are embarking on new and exciting events in 2006. We are gearing up and looking forward to a year that promises to be even busier for us than last year. And as always, we have several performances coming soon that you can attend. The performances are free and open to the public. So please check out our upcoming events calendar on page 3 of this newsletter or visit us at our website for more up-to-date information on our performance schedule.

Our featured article in this publication of the newsletter is about Lynnette White, the director of the Plantation Singers, the Righteous Blends, and her newest group, the Rainbow Gospel Singers of Charleston. Those who know Lynnette know that she is truly a light and has been described as a “walking smile.” Nothing could be more true. If you have never had the opportunity to speak with Lynnette, make a point to come to any public performance and introduce yourself.

In our future newsletters, we will give you an opportunity to meet other members of our organization as they are featured in upcoming articles. So, please keep check.

In this newsletter you will: meet the director of the Plantation Singers, the Lynnette White is a singer, performer, director, and teacher based in Charleston, SC. She is currently the director of the a capella spiritual singing group - the Plantation Singers, renowned for their singing of the music of the Lowcountry. The group performs locally, regionally, and nationally. Internationally, the group has performed in Naples, Italy; South Korea; and Spain. They have received a preservation award from the City of Charleston and have released three CDs entitled “This Little Light of Mine,” “Feelin’ Good,” and “Merry Christmas from the Plantation Singers,” several cassettes, and a video/DVD entitled “Roots of Rhythm.”

In addition to directing the Plantation Singers, Ms. White is also the director of the Righteous Blends, an a capella gospel singing group based in Charleston, SC. The Righteous Blends performs in most of Charleston’s historic sites and homes, as well as the major resorts, plantations and reception sites.

Ms. White is also the director of her newest group, the Rainbow Gospel Singers of Charleston. The Rainbow Gospel Singers specialize in the singing of old gospel songs and hymns.
